Less Weight, More Momentum

BRAND GUIDELINES

Visual identity & usage — Version 1.0 · 2026

Less weight, more momentum.

Veylrio builds outbound for companies that would rather be closing than prospecting.

We run the cold calling, email, and LinkedIn — and the lists, automations, and teams behind them — so a client's pipeline stays full without the operational drag. The promise in our name is the promise of the work: take the weight off, and let momentum build.

What the brand must always feel like

Every visual and verbal decision in this guide ladders up to three feelings. When a choice is unclear, choose the option that protects these.

Comfort

Relief, not pressure. Warm grounds, calm colour, generous space. We remove anxiety.

Premium

Considered and restrained. Quiet confidence reads as quality and justifies the price.

Trust

Steady and credible. We handle a client's pipeline; the brand must look like safe hands.

The idea behind the mark

The mark is a V that sheds its closed side. From a single point, the strokes fan outward into signal — one origin reaching many. That is outbound compressed into a glyph: focused effort multiplying into reach. The same fanning lines carry the slogan — weight falls away on the left, motion opens up on the right.

The full lockup pairs the mark with the wordmark through a thin divider rule. That hairline isn't decoration — it signals structure, order, and care, the same qualities a client is buying.

Versions & when to use them

One system, five forms. Pick the lightest form that still carries the brand for the space you're in.

Primary lockup

The default. Use wherever there's room — websites, decks, proposals, documents, signage.

Horizontal lockup

Mark + wordmark, no slogan. For headers, nav bars, email signatures and other tight strips.

Stacked lockup

Centred. For square and centred layouts — social headers, hero blocks, merchandise.

The mark

The V alone. For favicons, app icons, profile photos and watermarks once the brand is known.

Wordmark

“Veylrio” on its own — only when the mark already appears nearby, e.g. a footer beneath a marked header.

Clear space & minimum size

Give the logo room. Keep clear space on every side equal to the height of the “V” (x). Nothing — type, edges, other logos — enters this zone. Space signals confidence; crowding signals the opposite.

Minimum clear space = x on all sides

Minimum sizes

Primary lockup — never below 12 mm / 28 px tall

Horizontal — never below 9 mm / 20 px tall

Mark — never below 6 mm / 16 px (favicon)

Below these sizes the slogan becomes unreadable — drop to the horizontal lockup or the mark instead.

What not to do

The logo is fixed artwork. Don't rebuild, restyle, or recolour it. A few of the most common mistakes:

✗ Don't stretch or condense

✗ Don't rotate or tilt

✗ Don't recolour the artwork

✗ Don't add shadows or effects

✗ Don't sit full-colour on busy backgrounds — use reversed or mono

✗ Don't rearrange or re-space the lockup

Palette

The colour does the heavy lifting on trust. A calm teal carries the brand; a warm terracotta is the spark. Use them in that order — teal dominant, terracotta rare.

Teal — “Ink” Dominant. Type, large fields, the mark. HEX #123A36 · RGB 18 58 54 · CMYK 69 0 6 77	Terracotta — accent Accent only. One emphasised thing per view. HEX #C56A4A · RGB 197 106 74 · CMYK 0 46 62 23

Terracotta on dark The accent, lifted for dark backgrounds. HEX #E0906F · RGB 224 144 111 · CMYK 0 36 50 12	Paper — ground Warm background. Never stark white. HEX #F0EBE1 · RGB 240 235 225 · CMYK 0 2 6 6

Proportion — roughly 70 / 20 / 10

Why: teal blends blue's credibility with green's calm — it reads trustworthy and lowers the temperature, so it leads. Terracotta is human warmth and energy; held back to ~10%, it stays premium and draws the eye exactly where you want it (a button, the beams, one word). Paper keeps everything soft and expensive.

Typefaces

Aa

Sora

Geometric sans. The workhorse — wordmark, all headings, buttons, UI and body text.

Why: modern, even and precise; it reads as competent and current.

Weights: Regular 400 · Medium 500 · Semibold 600.

Aa

Newsreader italic

Editorial serif. The accent — the slogan, one emphasised word in a headline, pull-quotes and testimonials.

Why: warmth and craft. The contrast against Sora makes the system feel considered and premium.

Use sparingly. Never for UI or long body.

Scale & pairing

Heading — Sora Semibold

Subhead — Sora Medium

Body — Sora Regular. Calm, legible, generous line spacing. This is where most words live.

Your pipeline, handled.

The signature move: state the fact in Sora, deliver the payoff word in Newsreader italic.

Brand pattern

The pattern is the mark's signal-fan repeated — momentum rendered as texture. It extends the brand onto backgrounds, covers and packaging without ever competing with the logo.

Subtle — behind text

Dark — teal sections

Bold — graphic moments

Where to use it

Subtle ($\leq 15\%$ ink) behind text on documents and slides. Dark on teal sections and footers. Bold as a standalone graphic on covers, social and packaging — never behind text.

Keep it consistent

Hold the motif at one scale; don't stretch or rotate it. Keep accents rare. Never lay the pattern directly behind or on top of the logo.

The system at work

How we sound

Calm, confident, and plain-spoken. We remove anxiety — we don't manufacture hype. Short sentences. Real numbers. No jargon for its own sake.

The headline move

State the fact in Sora; land the payoff word in Newsreader italic. One emphasised word — never more.

You close. We open.

Your reps should be closing — not prospecting.

Cold outreach, warm pipeline.

Do

Lead with the outcome. Be specific. Sound like a calm expert. Use the slogan as a sign-off.

Don't

Over-promise, shout in capitals, stack buzzwords, or alter the slogan's wording.

Slogan: “Less Weight, More Momentum.” Keep the wording exact. Title case in the lockup; tracked uppercase only in the dressed-up banner treatment.

The whole brand, one page

For anyone — designer, developer, or AI — applying the brand. If you only read one page, read this.

Logo

Primary = mark + divider rule + wordmark + slogan. Default to the SVG. Clear space = height of the “V”. Min 12 mm / 28 px; smaller → use horizontal lockup or mark.

Colour

Ink/Teal #123A36 (dominant ~70%). Terracotta #C56A4A (accent ~10%). Paper #FOEBE1 (background). Cream #F2EEE6 (text on dark). Accent-on-dark #E0906F.

Type

Sora — wordmark, headings, UI, body. Newsreader italic — slogan, one emphasised word, quotes. Never set body or UI in the serif.

Pattern

Signal-fan motif. Subtle behind text; bold for graphic moments; never on or behind the logo. One scale, accents rare.

Voice

Calm, confident, plain. Lead with the outcome. Headline = Sora fact + Newsreader-italic payoff word. No hype, no all-caps.

Slogan

“Less Weight, More Momentum” — exact wording, always. Sign off with it; don't reword or translate it.

Never

Recolour, stretch, condense, rotate, or add effects to the logo · place full-colour artwork on busy or low-contrast backgrounds (use reversed or mono) · rebuild the lockup or change its spacing · let terracotta dominate.
